The Whole World Is A Stage

1985 ANTLER

Deer Creek High School
Edmond, Oklahoma 73034
Volume 37

Georgia Messick tries her hand at being a chanteuse.

Lisa Lubbers experiments with new business techniques.

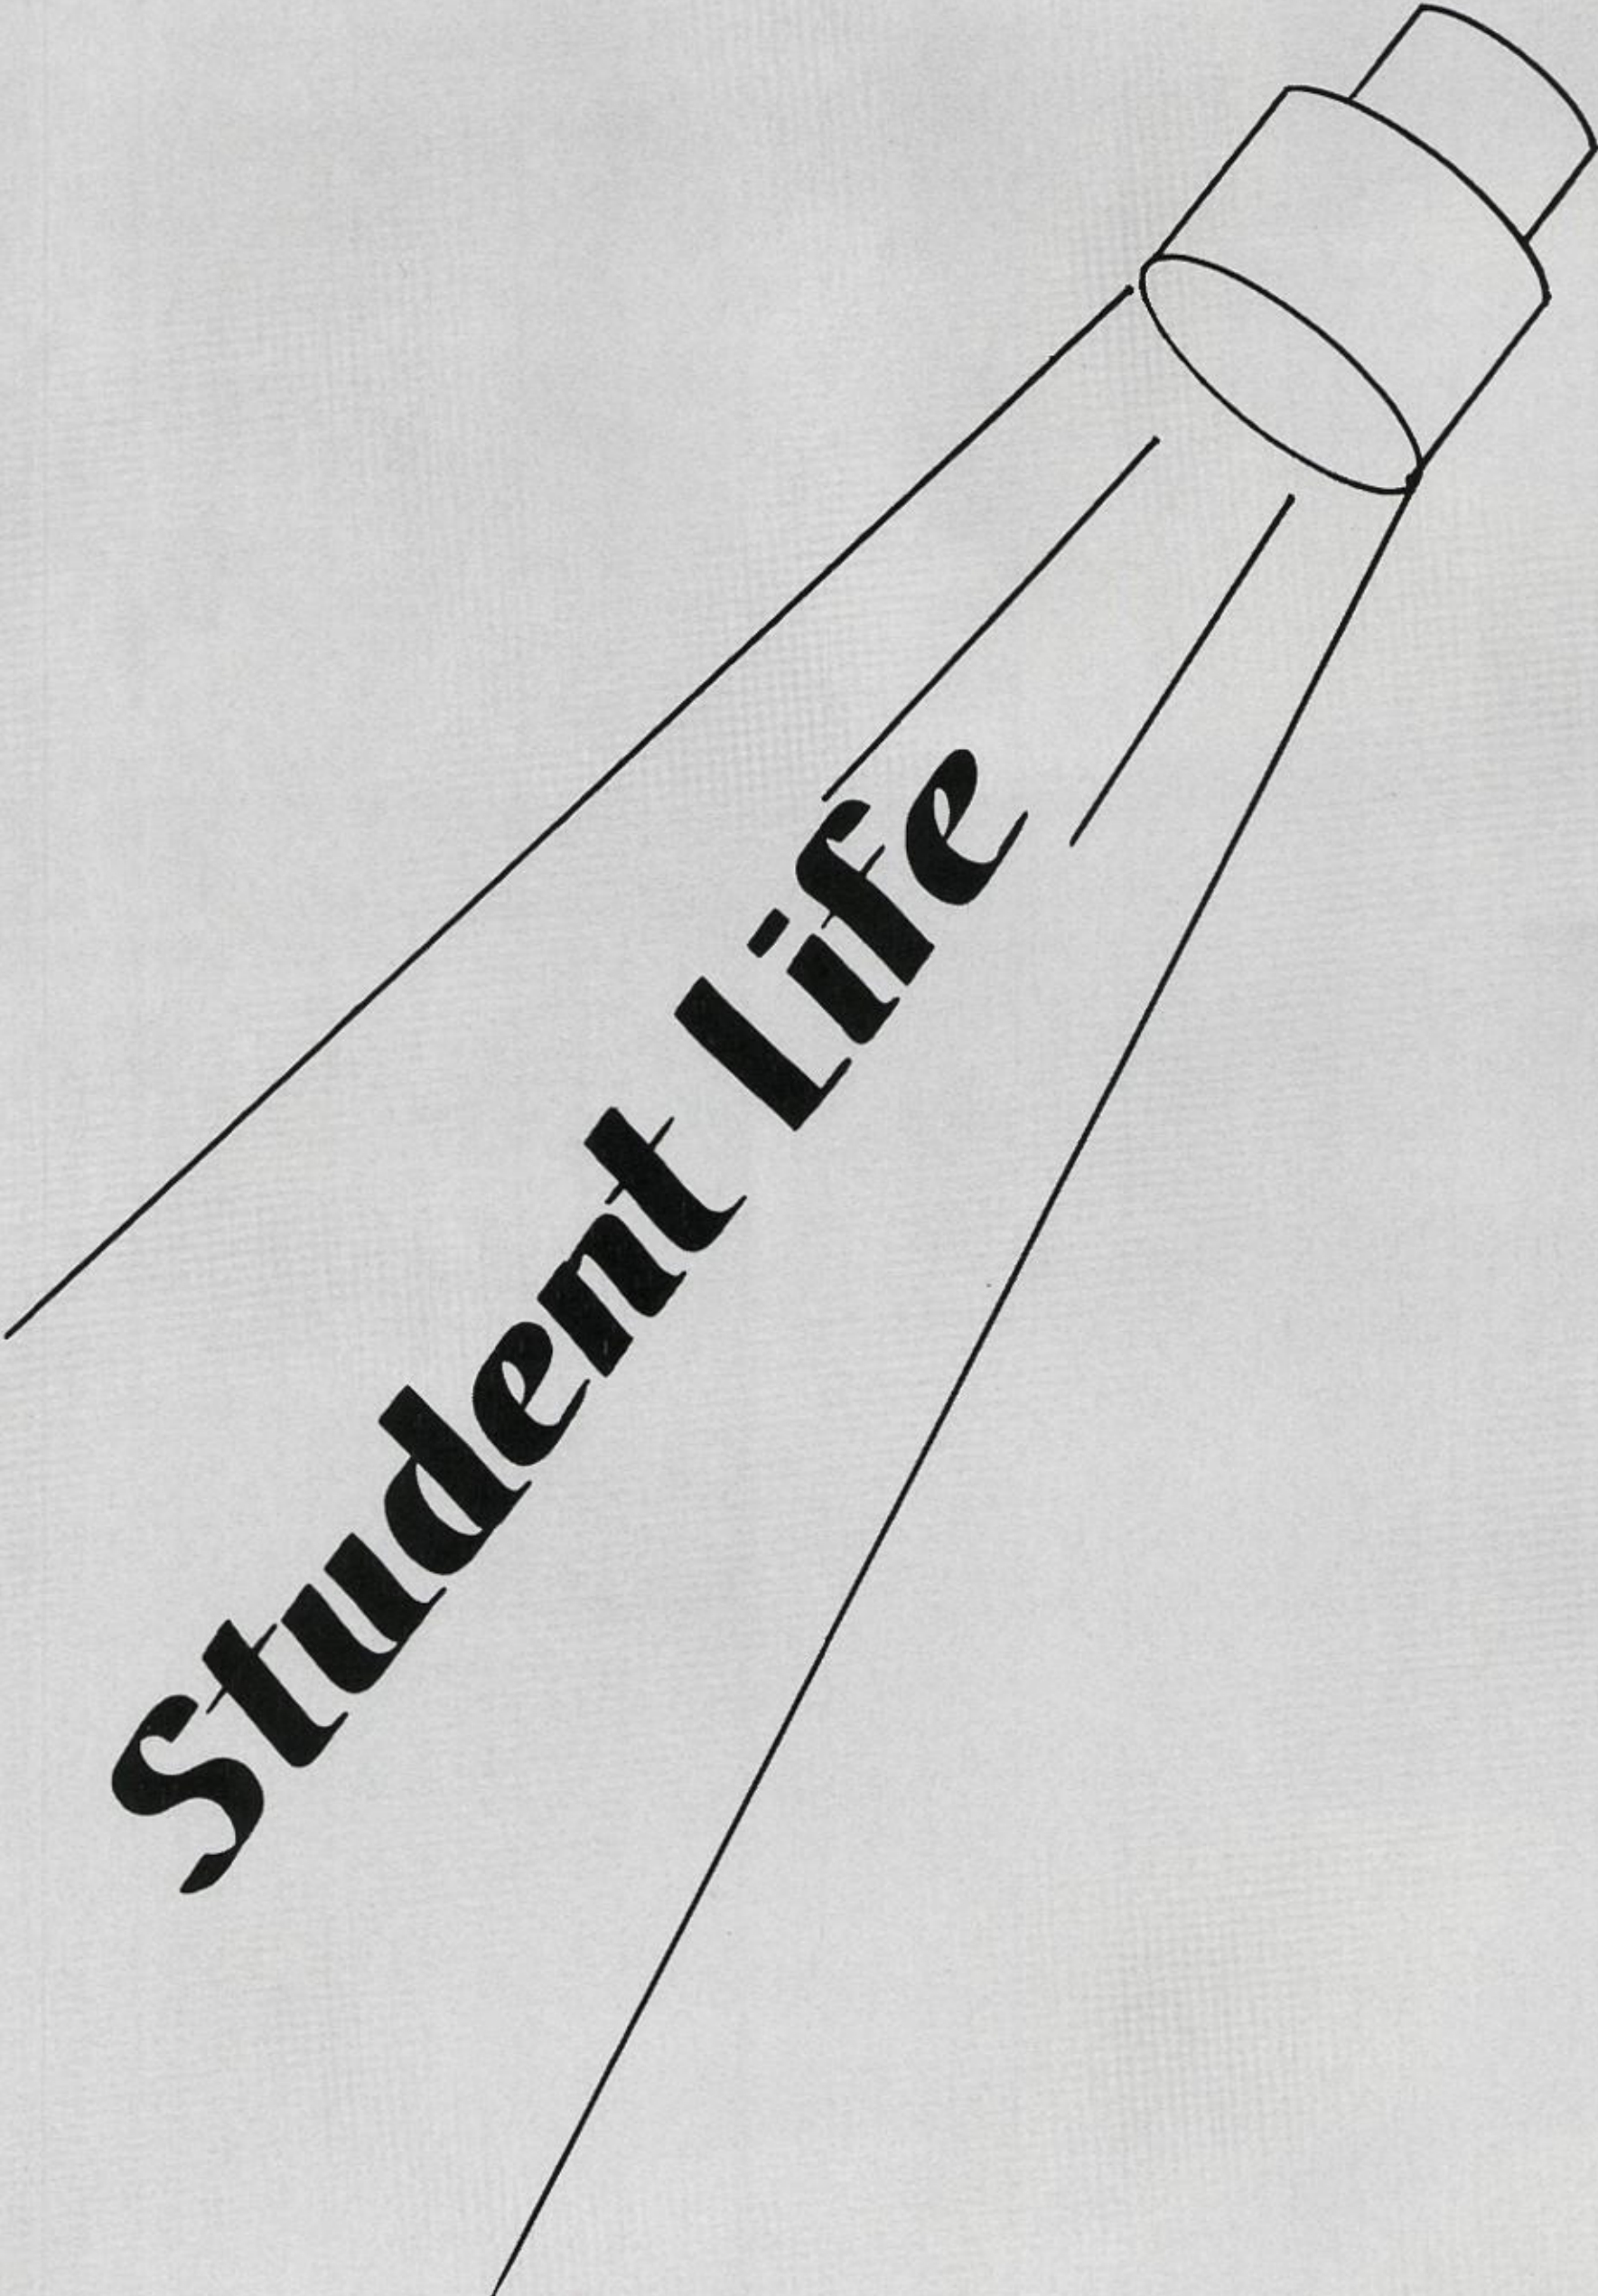

Johnna Hundley gets some advice about universities from the OSU cowboy, Pistol Pete, at a college seminar.

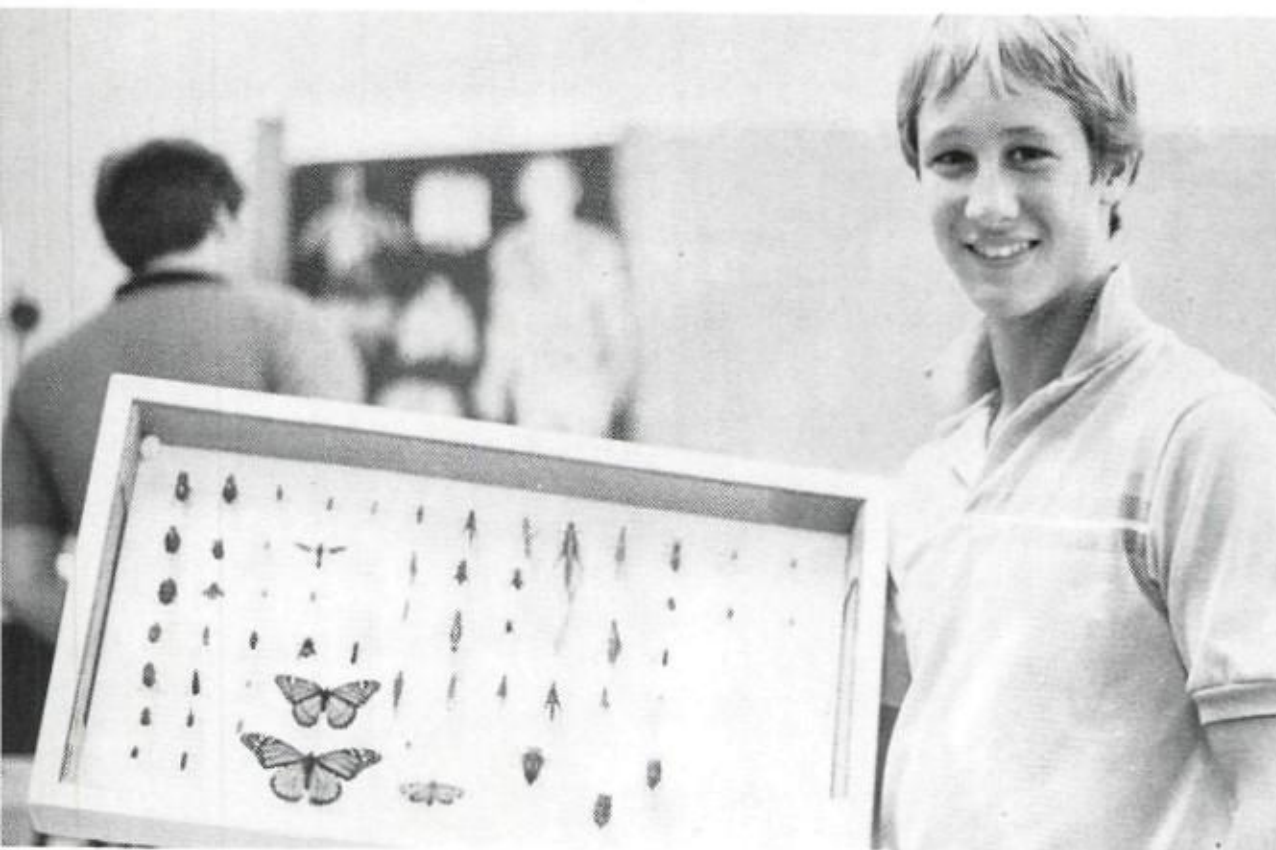

Anonymous students channeled their energy in unusually creative ways during the year.

"Mame" Provides Change Of Pace

On November 16, the high school entered the Fine Arts building. The state was set as a rich, New York apartment. The audience was taken back to the 1920's. The cast told of an eccentric lady who became a mother as quickly as her nephew became an orphan.

The story line followed young Patrick and his Aunt Mame through happiness, hardship, and trauma. The audience watched as Patrick grew, and periodically grew away from his aunt. Yet, in the end, the audience saw that Mame would never change. This upbeat, lively, and often serious production was a treat to all involved.

Classes Compete In Crazy Competition

The students of Deer Creek worked hard for a well deserved day of fun and games. The mini olympics provided such an outlet. All four classes competed in hand to hand competition for the honor of being pronounced the champions. There was a wide turnout for all events. Some had the legs for the mile relay, or arms for the football pass, or in some cases just a good sense of humor. Although volleyball seemed to be the most popular, tug-of-war and the life saver pass had lots of fans. Sunbathing was a frequent sideline sport. In the end, the seniors came out on top, winning both the tug-of-war and the volleyball match.

Faculty Supports Pupils Year-Round

Throughout the year, our teachers at Deer Creek provided the strong backing and firm support that teach student, at some time or another, needed. Although rigid with their views, they were always ready to be reasoned with. With a firm hand and a willing smile, our teachers were ready to be educators as well as friends.

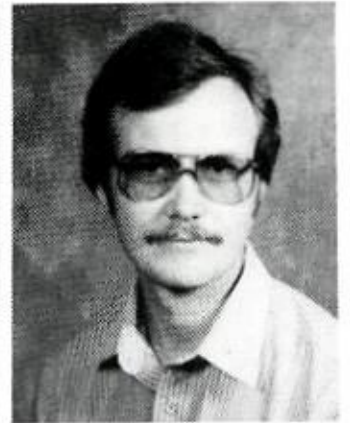

Too many times they were over looked, neglected, or just plain abused, but our teachers were still there, ready, willing, and able!
